EXPLANATORY.—The arrangement is by GENERATIONS, alphabetically indicated; each individual having also designating number. "A" represents the FIRST generation, "B" the SECOND, and so on. EXAMPLE: "C12, Rev. W. H. Bird," shows that he was of the third generation and the twelfth mentioned of that generation.

THIS RECORD OMITTS THOSE MORE THAN ONE GENERATION REMOVED IN DESCENT FROM THE NAME BIRD. EXAMPLE: "C6" was born with the name Bird, and she and her children are shown, but her grand children—the children of D29, Catharine Elizabeth (Kleiser)—are omitted.

+This reference mark opposite a name indicates a continuation of the record further on.

The Bird Family.

In issuing this compilation I respectfully request that any additional authentic information relating to the Bird and affiliated families shall be communicated to me.

St. Louis, Mo.

A-1 Colonel Abraham Bird. For a number of years, to as late as 1787, he was a member of the House of Delegates of Virginia, first from the then Dunmore County. He was in the Convention of Virginia, which met in Williamsburg in 1776, and instructed Virginia's delegates in Congress to propose Independence, and which, by an unanimous vote, made Virginia an independent State. In the Virginia Almanac of 1784 his name is spelled BYRD—as it is also in the record, of 1787, of his declining to serve as delegate from Shenandoah County.

The Records of Virginia show also that he held various offices of military command in the years of the Revolutionary War. As "Coroner" he was commander-in-chief of the military forces of Shenandoah County, Virginia. He is also recorded as Colonel, etc.

The BIRD family were landholders, and at some time, possibly, residents of Augusta County, Virginia. March 1st, 1773, ABRAHAM BIRD received a grant of land at Brock's Gap, Augusta County. On July 6, 1765, ANDREW BIRD was given a grant on the south side of Smith's Creek; and on February 10, 1748, WILLIAM BERD was given a grant of land in Augusta County.

["Augusta County, Virginia, was formed from Orange County, in 1738. Previously, all that part of Virginia lying west of the Blue Ridge was included in Orange County; but in the fall session of this year it was divided into the counties of Frederick and Augusta. Frederick County was bounded by the Potomac on the north, the Blue Ridge on the east, and a line to be run from the head-spring of Hedgman and head-spring of the Potomac, on the south and west; the remainder of Virginia, west of the Blue Ridge, to constitute Augusta County. This immense territory, at the present time, comprises four entire States, and nearly forty counties in Western Virginia."—Historical Collections of Virginia, by Henry Howe.

[WILLIAM BYRD, the First, of Westover, is mentioned on page 124, Virginia Magazine of History and Biography, as the BIRD mentioned on page 122, vol. iv., and vol. v. mentions, page 356, * * * "a family of Bird, who lived for a number of generations in King and Queen." Page xvi., Hayden's Virginia Genealogies, describes the following coat-of-arms and crest, as used by the Bird and Byrd family. Arms: 'Arg. a cross floy between four martlets, gu. on a canton az. a crescent.' Crest, 'a martlet rising gu.'" As relevant to the various spellings of the name, is quoted: "Somewhere about the year 1674 William Byrd, with his newly married wife, left his home in the little town of Broxton, in the County of Chester in England . . . he could trace his descent from one Hugo le Bird of Charlton." [Page 10, "Some Colonial Mansions," by Thomas Allen Glenn.

[Members of the Bird family had settled in this country (Connecticut, Massachusetts, Virginia, etc.) considerably prior to 1700. Isaac Bird, of Sussex, N. J., also a Lieutenant Bird, Andrew Bird, Thomas Bird, William Bird, and Benjamin Bird, of Pennsylvania, were Revolutionary soldiers. There was a Mark Bird in Pennsylvania, who was the owner of an iron plant near Birdsborough. In 1781 a Middlesex County (Va.) Commissioner and Collector of Taxes was George Bird.

B3 "CAPTAIN" ABRAHAM BIRD removed from Virginia in the autumn of 1803, and settled near Lexington, Ky., where he continued to reside until the fall of 1825, when he removed to Missouri and settled near Hannibal. He was a Presbyterian communicant, was also prominent as a citizen, and was frequently elected to responsible offices in Missouri in a legislative and judicial capacity, serving as State Senator during two terms, as well as occupying other positions of honor. Losing his fortune through the dishonesty of employes, his attempt to retrieve it by a trip to California in 1840 resulted in death and his burial in the Pacific Ocean, on October 13, 1850. He married Catharine Fry, grand daughter of Jacob Speers, daughter of William and Rachel (Speers) Fry. She was born May 31, 1787, and died Nov. 11, 1857.

"The Speers and Frye names were introduced into the wilds of Pennsylvania about 1770. Henry Speers and Regina Fromen, his wife, were born in Germany; came from Virginia and settled on the farm now known as the Gibsonton Mills, on the Monongahela River below Bellevernon. They had four sons and one daughter—Jacob, Solomon, Noah, Henry and Christina. (Abraham Frye and family located on the opposite side of the river. There were also other Fryes—Samuel, Benjamin, etc.)" [See also page 7. *See Note, p. 13.]

"Henry Speers, Sr., died in 1773. His son Jacob emigrated to Kentucky in early days, where for many years he was a successful business man, and from whom the Kentucky Speers had their origin. Jacob Speers had sons, Solomon, Noah, Abram (born 1790 in Kentucky), also daughters. His grand children, the children of William Fry were: Catharine (married Abraham Bird); Rachel (married Aaron, son of John and Mary (Hogan) Forman); Henry (married his cousin, Rachel Fry); Benjamin, Joseph, Jacob; Elizabeth (married Heiskell), and Rebecca (married —— Smith). He (in 1790) built the first distillery in Bourbon County, Ky., whose product gave "Bourbon County" its fame. [Collins' History of Kentucky uses the spelling "Spears."]

"Solomon Speers was killed by the Indians, on Salt River in Kentucky. Noah Speers, born March 27, 1760, was founder of Bellevernon, Pa. Henry Speers (2), born July 8, 1756; married Rebecca Frye, a daughter of Henry Frye, Sept. 24, 1777. She died July 16, 1835. He was pastor of the Enon Baptist Church at the time of his death, Jan. 26, 1840. Noah Speers, a son of Henry and Rebecca (Frye) Speers, married a daughter of Abraham Frye, Sr. Christina Speers, daughter of Henry and Regina Speers, married Samuel Frye." FRY.

Letters from Danville, Ky., advise:—"Catharine (Fry) Bird, we spelled it Byrd, was sister to my great grandfather, Henry Fry (who married his own cousin, Rachel Fry, from near Richmond, Va.). Both lived in Fayette County, Ky. His father, William Frye, served in the Revolution, was very wealthy, had very extensive land grants here. The late General Speed S. Fry, of this place (son of Thomas Walker and Betsey (Smith) Fry—grandson of Joshua Fry, great grandson of Colonel John Fry, and great great-grandson of Colonel Joshua Fry), thought he was about third or fourth cousin of my grandmother, Rachel (Fry) Kerr. The family tradition is that the Fry family included French and Holland ancestry." [What bearing this has on the "German" Speers family mentioned on page 2, growing out of the common misuse of the word "Dutch," has not been ascertained. The wife of Colonel Joshua Fry, as shown below, was French, a daughter of Dr. Paul Micou.

[William Fry, later of Jessamine County, Ky., was born Oct. 17, 1761, in Albemarle County, Virginia, according to a certificate dated December 10, 1901, by H. Clay Evans, United States Pension Commissioner, and was granted a pension for services as a soldier during the Revolutionary War, his last mentioned enlistment having been in 1781, under Captain Benj. Harris (Colonel Richardson), under whom his brother Joshua Fry (a resident, in 1833, of Garrard County, Ky.), also served as a soldier. He enlisted in the Revolutionary Army from Albemarle County, Va., which county is not far from and is due south of both Shenandoah County, Va., (for years the home of Colonel Abraham Bird, father-in-law of Catharine (Fry) Bird) and of Frederick County, Va., which last named county became, in 1744, the home of Benjamin Frye, etc. See p. 7.]

He served as Justice of the Peace from 1700 to 1720." "He died May 23, 1730, aged 78 years."	COL. JOSHUA FRY is first mentioned in Virginia as Parish Vestryman and Magistrate of Essex County, between 1710-20. He died in 1754. (Gov. Dinwiddie's commission to Col. Joshua Fry spells the name Frye.) Matthew (1) Edloe came to Virginia in 1618, and was Burgess for the College Plantation in 1620. Mrs. Alice Edlowe, or Edloe, appears to have been his widow. ✱ The following clipping from "Memoir of Colonel Joshua Fry, some time Professor in William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Virginia, and Washington's senior in command of the Virginia forces, 1754, etc., by Rev. P. Slaughter, D. D." shows that the Fry family has had representatives in this country for almost three complete centuries. (The book quoted also mentions names shown herein: Byrd, Heiskell, Winn, etc. The Philip Bird Winn, p. 28 thereof, who married Martha Fry Nicholas, daughter of Joshua Fry Nicholas and grand daughter of Colonel Joshua Fry, was son of Jesse D. Winn, p. 12 hereof.)

"The name Fry is coeval with the Colony. As early as 1623, it appears in a census of that date, John Fry died in James City and Henry Fry at Flower de Hundred. In 1626 there was a John Fry of St. John's Parish, New Kent, who had large landed estates in old Rappahannock County (now Essex), the very county where our Joshua Fry * * * * * married the widow of Colonel Hill, daughter of Dr. Paul Micou." According to tradition, the Fry families herein represented by Catharine Fry, who married (B3) Captain Abraham Bird, and by Araminta Fry, who married (C10) Mark Bird, were related.

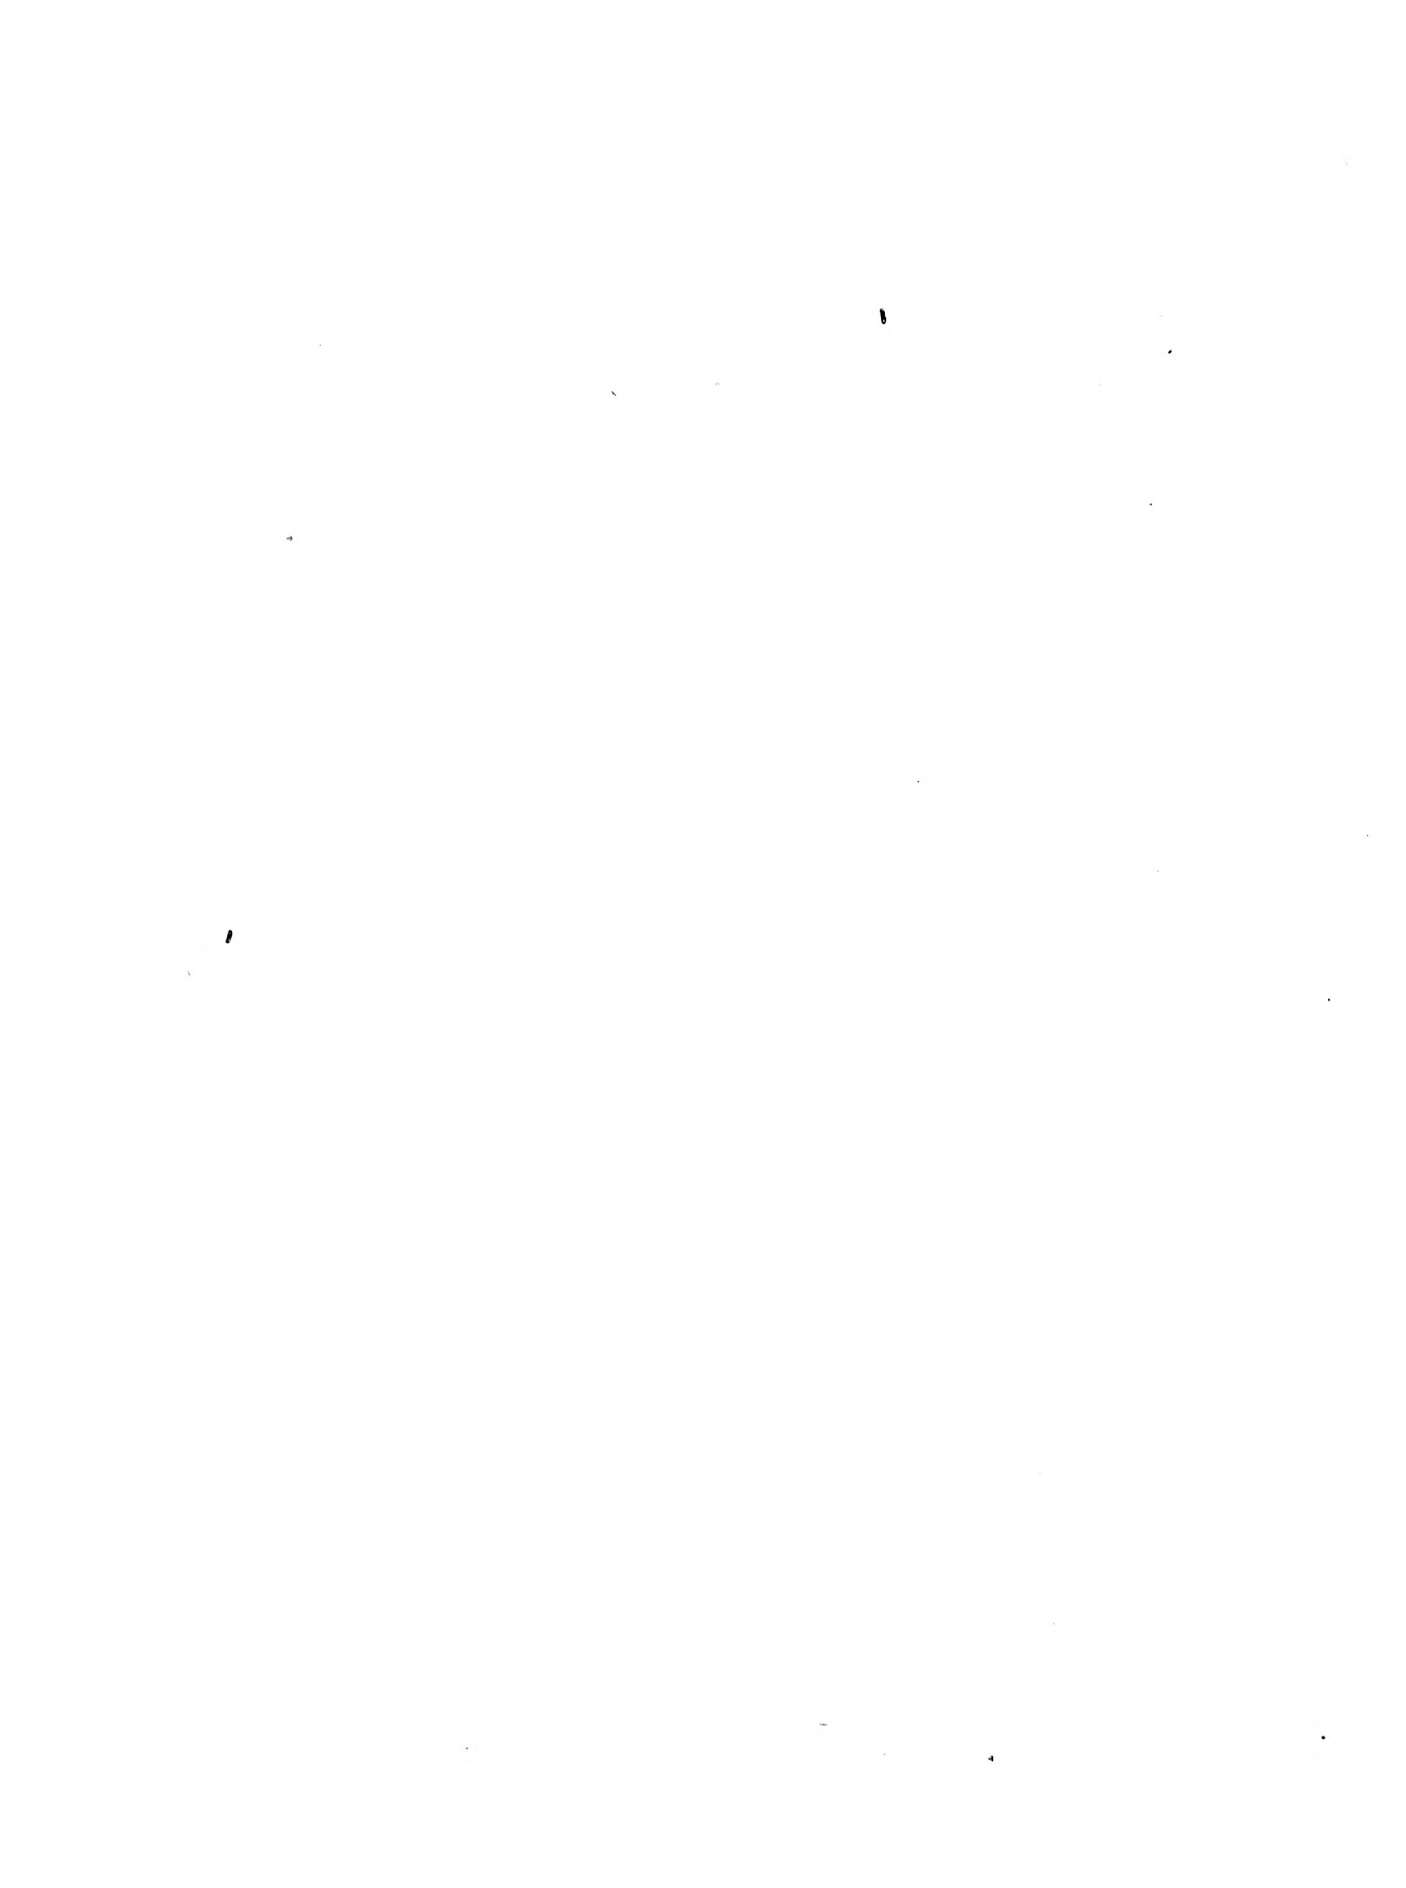

On page 401, vol. v., Virginia Historical Magazine, is copied from Colonel George Washington's ledger a list of the officers entitled to land * * * * * under the Proclamation of 1754, beginning with "The Estate of Colo. Joseph Fry."
